MANAGING RISK

Secret #4

Experience modification factors are often wrong or mismanaged.

Most insurance buyers assume their experience modification factor is correct. This is a dangerous assumption because most of the time it may be wrong. When that happens, the insurance company benefits.

Even if the insurance modification factor is correct, it may be mismanaged and then you're overcharged. There are simple strategies to lower it. A qualified agent knows how to control your costs.

A qualified agent can provide you with some simple strategies to lower your experience modification factors and control your costs.
